Nellie McClung School
Calgary

Alberta, Canada

Calgary Board of Education is one of Canada's largest school boards in terms of student population with over 110,000 students attending over 220 Schools. Nellie McClung was built in 1969, a K-6 School located in the Southwest community of Palliser and features a very progressive design for the era, far away from the typical 'bells and cells' building design. The central hub area, which is used as a library/ resource room, is surrounded by 13 learning environments and really is the heart of the school.

In terms of furnishings, this transformation included a selection of highly flexible mobile pieces that support all learning types and needs whether it be individual, small or large group work or community meetings. The furniture can easily be reconfigured depending on the usage of the area. The parent association was involved in the entire process from planning to completion as well as being active in raising part of the funds so the project could be realized.
